PASTOR QUILTS TO HELP GIRL

Brother of William Offutt of
This City, Leaves His Flock

ON ACCOUNT OF CENSURE

Columbus Minister Exercises
Freedom as a Citizen—Coming to Rushville

Rev. S. S. Offutt, pastor of the Christian church at Columbus, Indiana, and a brother of William Offutt, East Sixth street, this city, is creating quite a bit of newspaper material these days on account of the work he insists on carrying on in connection with his pastorate.

Today the metropolitan papers contain stories of the pastor's resignation because of the censure of some members of his congregation when the minister went to the county jail to offer sympathy and spiritual advice to the alleged murderer, Mrs. Frances Cooper, who is said to have killed her baby. He believes that it is impossible for him to reside in a city where there is work of this kind to do and fail to do his share of it. The congregation asked that a meeting be held at once to consider the action taken by the minister, but the Rev. Offutt asked that the meeting be not held at once, as he did not care to argue with the few, nor did he care to be discussed.

Rev. Offutt was the guest of his brother here last week, and will return tomorrow to spend a few days in Rushville. He has not decided what he will do in the future.

MOTORMAN ROSS MUCH IMPROVED

Exaggerated Stories of His Condition Were Circulated—Doctor's Statement

In some manner a number of gross exaggerated stories of the condition of Motorman Gash Ross, became current since he was injured Saturday evening at Connersville. Some of the newspapers printed reports that his hands were burned and would have to be amputated. His friends will be glad to learn that this is a mistake, and that the attending physicians said this afternoon that within the past forty-eight hours everything pointed to a speedy and complete recovery. The only serious injury he was thought to have sustained was internal injuries from the fall. Without some complications should arise, Mr. Ross will be able to be out soon.

QUOTES FROM THE BIBLE

Using the Familiar Verses That Incites Pity in One—Tells Hard Luck Story

If you are a close observer, no doubt your eyes fell on the following paid advertisement which appeared in last Monday evening's Daily Republican:

NOTICE.

I am in need of food and clothes, bedding and means to Pay Rent and fuel and out of work, who is willing to help in giving to my need and Daughter, for Lord loveth a cheerful giver 2 Cor. 9-7, and 1 John 3-17.

J. S. Harner 206 East 10th street, rear, Rushville.

The very idea of a man advertising for charity would create curiosity if nothing else, and would naturally wonder what sort of conditions surrounded one in such abject circumstances, that they should be obliged to call out from the house tops for aid, after a prosperous year—yea and even years—of plenty.

And moreover, that a man should be given to quoting from the New Testament, in order to incite pity causes one to wish to know more of the fellow, and why he would resort to such odd means to put his condition before his neighbors.

A representative of this paper called on Mr. Harner and found in him a man who was indeed low in spirits, but with the faith that the Lord was going to answer his supplication.

He lives with a grown-up daughter, and until recently was employed at the Park furniture factory. After he was laid off then he went to work in the cornfield husking corn for different farmers, and following the corn harvest worked on the streets for a few days. In the past few weeks Mr. Harner says he was unable to secure employment, although he is an able bodied man.

Mr. Harner is a close student of the Bible and apparently a very religious man, quoting freely from Holy Writ.

PHOTO OF OLD COURT HOUSE IS TO BE FRAMED

From Log Taken From Old Corduroy Road in This City

An enlarged photo of the old Rush county court house has been secured which was taken in the winter time when the snow capped the posts of old hitch rack.

A frame will be made for the photo from a log taken from the old corduroy road in Main street, by the sewer gang. When the picture is framed it will be placed among the old pictures in the court house art gallery.

BUSINESS IS HEAVY AT THE LOCAL POSTOFFICE

The business at the postoffice this week was larger than any previous Xmas week, both in the matter of registered letters and packages. Lon Kennedy, substitute city mail carrier, is assisting the regular force.

The Chinese firecracker industry continues to grow despite the fact that they are made in great quantities in other countries.

COUNTY AUDITOR WINSHIP GETS A CHRISTMAS GIFT

Only one man derives any pecuniary gain by the revision of the manner of handling the county's finances under the new depository law. The county auditor is allowed $50 a year for his services as secretary of the county Board of Finance. The explicit provision is made that all other members of the finance boards shall serve without pay. The auditor is secretary of the Board only by virtue of his office, and has no vote except in a few specific instances.

LONG HILL TO BE GRADED DOWN

Largest and Steepest Grade on Old State Road To Be Shortened

SCENE OF MANY ACCIDENTS

Will Be Boon to the Farmers and Especially to Automobile
Toursits

One of the greatest public improvements which has been constructed in Franklin county, is the cutting down and grading of the Laurel hill, a few miles east of Andersonville.

This hill is 2400 feet long and very steep. It has always been a barrier in the winter months to the farmers who haul their products to markets and it has been the scene of many accidents, several people and horses being killed there.

The people of Rush, Franklin and Fayette counties are interested in the fact that the hill is to be so graded as to make it 1000 feet shorter and the steep incline decreased. This is a boon to automobilists who have always dreaded this hill as only the strongest machines could climb it and it is on the old State road leading direct from Cincinnati to Indianapolis.

The rural scenery along this old road is very picturesque and which has been imprisoned on the canvas of many artists.

Blessings on thee, little mah,
Who at this time of year
Greets the Merry Christmastide
With childish Christmas cheer,
And live in childish hope because
Of your true faith in Santa Claus.

Live on nor lose your simple faith
In childish mysteries.
How would we claim the happiness
That in your childhood lies—
And live the hope that live because
Of your true faith in Santa Claus.

CHILDREN HAD GOOD PROGRAMS

In Three of the Churches in
This City Last Evening

MANY WERE MADE HAPPY

Some of the More Unfortunate Remembered at Close of Meeting

Not only were the children in the Sunday schools of St. Paul's M. E. church, the First Presbyterian and Main Street Christian church, made happy, but the older people greatly enjoyed the entertainments furnished by the children at the different churches Monday night.

At the Main Street Christian church the large auditorium was crowded. The children did their work well in enacting "Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus and Their Dolls," and the music rendered by the orchestra was excellent. A collection was taken to be distributed among the children of the Industrial school of this city.

At St. Paul's M. E. church a large crowd assembled and the audience was not disappointed as the play "Santa Claus and his Wife at Home With Their Dolls," was all that could be expected of it. The children were well trained and played their parts gracefully.

The entertainment at the First Presbyterian church was attended by a goodly number who enjoyed the evening in a genuine yuletide spirit. The agile brownies were the particularly bright stars of the evening and the recitations and music was exceptionally good.

All the churches were artistically decorated appropriate to the occasion.

GRAIN BUYERS PREDICT CORN WILL SOON MOVE

The corn crop will begin to move towards the market about the first of the new year. This is the prediction of the grain buyers at this time and according to their judgment the wheels of transportation will groan beneath the weight of the corn crop on an after Jan. 1, 1908.

The season for corn was unusually late and because of the great amount of moisture in the corn, it has been kept away from shelter much longer than if maturing had set in earlier in the field.

WHAT DOES XMAS MEAN TO YOU?

Let us All Observe it in the Good Old Fashioned
Way

GETTING THE TRUE SPIRIT

And Making it More Than a Holiday for Exchanging Meaningless Greetings

What does Christmas mean to you? A day off, few remembrances from relatives and friends and a good dinner—is that all? Surely you are going to make it an occasion for more than usual rejoicing this year, a real old-fashioned Christmas. Going to be liberal in spirit and pocket, and scatter merriment as you never did before. Been a little selfish, maybe, devoted so much time to enjoying yourself that you have forgotten other folks. Good folks, now aren't they the best folks in the world? And you're just going to show them how appreciative you are. You don't like this modern way of turning old Christmas into an occasion of trading and exchange of meaningless printed cards, and you're going to see all the friends you can that day and shake hands with them, and pat them on the back and tell them how glad you are to be with them; and to those you cannot see you are going to write long, warm-hearted

LEAP YEAR IS FEW DAYS OFF

The Day Coming When the Girl Proposes and the Man Deposes

IT IS NOW UP TO THEM

Girls Can Give Dance, Club
Parties and Speak Right Out in Meeting

If the closing year has not been what it should have been to some Rushville maiden who imagines she would rather be married than single, said maiden can take heart because after today only seven days intervene between 1907 and leap year.

It has naturally been four years since the last leap year, and during these four long, weary years the hands of many maidens have been held—excuse us—tied by the bonds of convention. It is never proper in the ordinary year for a girl to take her courage in one hand and her lover in the other and make a genuine proposal of marriage to him. But in leap years it is the proper thing to do. If Rushville girls lose out during the coming year, it will be their own fault, no one else will be to blame. In leap year girls can give dances (as the Tri Kappas will press the season with a Charity Ball on New Year's Eve), can arrange parties and all such functions, and oh joy, they can invite their young men friends and can take matters on their own shoulders just as much as they care to. There is no reason why next year should not be one of supreme happiness for every Rushville girl who has nerve to speak her mind. It is rumored that some of the local women who have been neglected by Cupid in the past will now become press agents of their own and will go after a little business in the gentle art of love making.

HAD TO PUT THE CASTOR UNDER HIM

Riley Wilhelm Picked up Out of the Snow in a Comatose
State

As Riley Wilhelm predicted he will enjoy (?) a white Christmas. Saturday night about eleven o'clock City Marshal Price found the Hodges branch singer full of the ambrosia of the gods lying in a comatose state, stretched out in the snow in the rear of William Frame's barn in West First street. The officer pressed J. A. Craig's delivery wagon into service as a patrol wagon and loaded the wiley Riley therein. He will take his Xmas dinner in the King's palace, and it is likely that he will also ring out the old and ring in the new year in Sheriff King's domicile.

The following communication is self explanatory: "This morning there came to the home of the pastor, J. F. Cowling, two very fine white chickens from the roost of Mr. and Mrs. William Jones. Many thanks for the white winged birds! A Merry Xmas to all."

HOWARD ON STAND

Mountaineer Brought From Prison to Testify In Powers Case

THE TAYLOR DEPOSITION

General Denial of Allegations Against Former Governor of Kentucky Again Read In Court.

Additional Evidence of an Incriminating Nature Introduced Against Youtsey.

Georgetown, Ky., Dec. 24.—It had been the purpose of the defense to have James B. Howard on the stand Monday, but because of the illness of W. M. Smith, attorney for the defense, who had expected to examine Howard, the testimony was deferred until today.

Just before adjournment last night the depositions of W. S. Taylor, taken in 1903 and read in the last trial of Powers, were again put in evidence. Judge W. L. Brown, who for some time occupied the bench in the Laurel county circuit court, testified that James Howard was in London, Laurel county, on the morning of Jan. 29, 1900, and that the witness had talked with Howard.

The reading of the deposition of former Governor Taylor attracted much attention. In a general way the testimony was a denial of all the facts and circumstances related by the witnesses for the commonwealth. He denied any complicity in the killing of Goebel. He also denied dictating to Youtsey the alleged letter to Howard. J. L. Hopkins gave testimony recounting a conversation he had with Youtsey in the agricultural building two days before Goebel was shot, in which Youtsey said: "I have sent to Cincinnati for some cartridges that will fix him," meaning Goebel, "and I will give $100 to any man who will fire the shot. But if I can't get anybody else to do the work I will do it myself."

Albert Helton, in whose possession was found the Malin rifle with which Goebel was shot, was on the stand to identify and trace the gun. He identified the weapon by its number, but was unable to say positively who gave it to him. He said that directly after the shooting of Goebel when he (Helton) went into the hall of the executive building, where several persons were gathered about the door of Caleb Powers's office, from which the shot was fired, trying to force an entrance, some person handed the gun to him during the excitement. He thought the man who gave him the gun had been pointed out to him as Youtsey, but was not positive. Helton also detailed a conversation he heard between Youtsey and J. B. Noe the day before Goebel was shot, in which Youtsey said Tallow Dick Combs had promised to kill Goebel, but he had gone back on him. Youtsey adding: "If I can't get anybody else to shoot him I will do it myself."

Child Killed by Lightning.

Reids Station, Ga., Dec. 24.—While she sat in the lap of her cousin at the family home in Reids Station, Sedora Bryant, the ten-year-old daughter of J. D. Bryant, was instantly killed by a stroke of lightning that wrecked the home and injured fifteen other persons, though not seriously. There was a gathering of neighbors at the Bryant home when the stroke of lightning, striking death to the girl and leaving her cousin unharmed, flashed through the house.

Storekeeper Kills Himself.

Franklin, Ind., Dec. 24.—Henry Boles, thirty-six years old, proprietor of a general store at Bud, eight miles west of this city, committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart. His wife found his body lying on the barn floor. Ill health is assigned as the cause. Besides his widow, he leaves three children.

On Trial for Murder.

New York, Dec. 24.—Giuseppe Capuzzo, alias Charles Davis, is on trial charged with the murder of Sophie Keper, who was found dead in his apartment July 28.

LAWSON SEES THINGS

The Man From Boston Says New Party Is Just Absolutely Necessary.

Boston, Dec. 24.—Thomas W. Lawson, in a statement made here, has confirmed a New York interview Sunday, in which he announced that he has decided to launch a movement which has for its object the re-election of President Roosevelt and the election of Governor Johnson of Minnesota, Democrat, to the vice presidency. Mr. Lawson claims that President Roosevelt's election is necessary to save the country from disaster, and that any other Republican or even William J. Bryan would be so satisfactory to New York financial interests that they "will willingly finance either or both parties through the campaign to any extent necessary."

Mr. Lawson adds that Mr. Bryan is "clean, honest and unpurchasable," but the money power believes it can "discredit him at the very beginning by showing the world his helplessness in handling and controlling a situation which has almost stumped President Roosevelt to handle and control."

'RAH 'RAH BOYS HELP

Yeomen Service Rendered by Football Team at Wreck.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 24.—St. Louis university football athletes made heroes of themselves near Brocket station on the Canadian Pacific, when they arrived on their way to the coast twenty minutes after a head-on collision between two freight trains. The engine crews and trainmen were under the debris, some of them scalded frightfully by escaping steam.

Medical student members of the team set to work to rescue the victims and materially aided, though working against escaping steam, in saving life and limb. They operated on three of the crushed trainmen. Brakeman Ormsbee was crushed to death, and Fireman Chris VonWald and G. McKinnon were so badly injured that they may die.

The wreck was caused by the failure of the operator at Brocket to deliver orders. He afterward fled.

ENDS THE CASE

No More Courts for Greene and Gaynor to Fight In.

Washington, Dec. 24.—The supreme court of the United States has denied the petition for writs of certiorari bringing to that court the cases of Benjamin D. Greene and John F. Gaynor, who are under sentence to pay a fine of $575,749 and to undergo terms of imprisonment of four years each on the charges of embezzlement and conspiracy in connection with Captain Oberlin Carter, to defraud the United States government in connection with harbor improvements at Savannah, Ga. This decision ends the case, and Greene and Gaynor must pay their fines and go to the penitentiary.

Colored Lodge Halls Dynamited.

Albany, Ga., Dec. 24.—Advices from Kestler, the town on the Georgia, Florida & Alabama railway in which a negro secret society hall was blown to atoms by a charge of dynamite several weeks ago, state that the outrages are being repeated, two halls in the country near Kestler having been dynamited Friday night. They were completely demolished. Halls to the number of at least five have been destroyed within the past month. As the result of the outrages there is a reign of terror among the negroes.

Fire-Damp Checks Rescue Work.

Jacobs Creek, Pa., Dec. 24.—Search for the victims of last Thursday's explosion in the Darr mine of the Pittsburgh Coal company has been practically suspended because it could only be continued at great risk of sacrificing the lives of those in the rescuing party, the deadly fire-damp especially menacing the men. The rescuers had penetrated within about one and a quarter miles of the end of the workings, when they were obliged to stop.

The Prosecution Closes.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—Assistant District Attorney Dobyns has announced that the case of the government in the Walsh trial is practically concluded. It is expected that the defense will move that the case be taken from the jury on the grounds that the prosecution has failed to prove the charges in the indictment. The trial entered upon its seventh week this morning.

The Harden Trial Resumed.

Berlin, Dec. 24.—The hearing of the Harden-VonMoltke case has been resumed here.

WANT THE TROOPS

Goldfield Mine Owners Deplore

Resolution to Withdraw Soldiers.

AN APPEAL TO ROOSEVELT

The President Has Been Urged to Reconsider His Action In Ordering Troops to Leave Disturbed Camp.

There Is Talk of Organizing a Company of Rangers to Preserve Law and Order.

Goldfield, Nev., Dec. 24.—Despite the positive statement which came from Washington to the effect that the federal troops will be removed from Goldfield on Dec. 30, mine owners have not given up and will appeal again to the president. They will present, they say, matters which have not yet been laid before him, one of these being that they regard as positive evidence that at least one deportation was attempted by the Western Federation of Miners, in which attempt four rifles were used.

While the miners are preparing to send further evidence to the president, Sheriff Ingalls and Captain Cox, the personal representative of Governor Sparks in Goldfield, are conferring on plans for the preservation of law and order after the troops depart. Sheriff Ingalls said that he is seeking at least fifty new men to constitute a force of deputies who will patrol the camp night and day, armed with guns.

The rumor has been current here that a company of rangers is contemplated, and as this could not be done without the action of the legislature, the statement of Captain Cox is taken, to mean that if such a plan is decided upon the legislature will be convened. A suit against the Western Federation of Miners is to be brought by the Goldfield mine operators' association in the federal court. An injunction will be asked for restraining the members of the local miners' union, which is affiliated with the Western Federation, from interfering in any way with the operation of the mines of Goldfield. The suit will be filed Dec. 26.

It has been definitely decided that Dec. 30 each individual mine owner of each company, lease or mine, shall take care of his own property, independent of the association. This will necessitate the putting on of many guards.

A CYCLOPEAN SERVICE

Colonel Goethals Breaking All Records in Construction Work.

Washington, Dec. 24.—The excavation from the line of the Panama canal last month aggregating 1,838,486 cubic yards, would have covered ten city blocks to a depth of forty feet. No such work has ever been done before as Colonel Goethals has been doing on the isthmus, according to statistics presented in the official canal record just received. For instance, it is shown that every fifty working days the commission is moving an amount of material equal to the pyramid of Cheops, which consumed the labor of 100,000 men for twenty years in the building, and the services of the same number of men for ten years in constructing the road connecting the work with the quarry. The commission could build the Suez canal at the present rate of progress in 3.8 years, though it took ten years for DeLesseps to complete his work. The famous Manchester ship canal could be excavated by the American canal workers in just twenty-five months, and even Emperor William's magnificent Kiel canal could be dug by the Americans in five years.

Four Billions of Deposits.

Washington, Dec. 24.—A statement showing the condition of the national banks of the United States at the close of business Dec. 3, has been made public by the comptroller of the currency. It shows that the total loans and discounts of the banks aggregate $4,583,337,094; individual deposits, $4,176,873,717; cash resources, $660,784,736; capital stock, $901,681,682; United States deposits, $223,117,082. The net balances of clearing house certificates in the banks on the date named was $64,344,128. The percentage of legal reserve to deposits is 21.31 per cent.

Acquitted the Train Crew.

Washington, Dec. 24.—A verdict of not guilty was returned by the jury last night in the case of Engineer Hilbrand, Conductor Hoffmeyer, Fireman McClellan and Brakeman Rudder, the train crew who were indicted for manslaughter in connection with the wreck at Terra Cotta, D. C., on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad on Dec. 30, 1906, in which forty-three persons were killed and upward of three score injured. The trial had been in progress for three weeks, and the verdict was reached after four hours' deliberation.

Straw Hats for Christmas.

Fargo, N. D., Dec. 24.—For the last thirty days the weather has been so warm here that overcoats have been discarded. If the warm weather continues a baseball game will be played Christmas day and the midwinter fans will celebrate the unusual event by wearing straw hats and linen dusters.

BOWED WITH AGE

"The Remnant of That Desperate Host" Assemble in London.

London, Dec. 24.—"The remnant of that desperate host," as Kipling described the veterans of the Indian mutiny, gathered yesterday afternoon in Albert hall to the number of more than 700 to commemorate the golden jubilee of the struggle which ended in the Indian empire being saved to Great Britain.

On the pension roll in the war office are the names of twelve hundred survivors of the mutiny, to each of whom an invitation was sent for the reunion, but old age prevented many from attending. Those who could travel, including officers and men, came from every corner of the United Kingdom and, with breasts covered with medals, made a brave showing as they drew up outside the hall to be reviewed by Lord Roberts.

The youngest among the veterans was sixty-five years of age, he having been a drummer boy during the fighting, but looked to be a youngster compared with his companions bowed with the weight of years.

The review was brief, as the infirmities of the veterans prevented them from standing long in line, so, headed by the field marshal, they marched to Albert hall, the galleries of which were filled with cheering crowds, and sat down to a banquet.

Lord Roberts, who presided, read a telegram from the king, who expressed the appreciation of the whole empire for the services rendered by the army of which the veterans were members. Lord Curzon, chancellor of Oxford university, gave the toast: "The Survivors of the Indian Mutiny," and Lewis Waller, the actor, recited verses especially written by Rudyard Kipling, of which the following is one:

"Today across our fathers' graves
The astonished years reveal
The remnant of that desperate host
Which cleaned out east with steel."

AN ALLEGED TAX DODGER

Daniel P. Baldwin Has Been Accused of Sequestering Taxes to the Amount of $51,000.

Ferrets Delving Over Records of a Quarter of a Century Arrive at Conclusions.

Logansport, Ind., Dec. 24.—Daniel P. Baldwin, one of the owners of the closed banks at Fowler, Ambia and Goodland, has been cited to appear before the county assessor and tax ferrets and show cause why $51,000 sequestered taxes should not be placed on the tax duplicates and the amount charged as a lien on his real estate. The ferrets went back twenty-five years, and they estimate he has failed to pay taxes to an amount of about $2,000 each year. The property valuation on which he is alleged to be thus delinquent is about $80,000. Baldwin will endeavor to talk the officials out of the contention. Mortgages, real estate and bonds are the basis of the action.

GOES INTO DETAILS

Auditor of State Files Specifications in Baldwin-Dague Case.

Indianapolis, Dec. 24.—Petitions in the receivership proceedings against Baldwin & Dague, owners of the private banks at Ambia, Goodland and Fowler, which were closed by the state auditor, have been prepared by James Bingham, attorney general of Indiana, and in the Fowler and Ambia cases have been filed in the circuit court at Fowler. The court set Jan. 6 as the date on which to hear the petitions. These petitions set forth specifically the amount of money borrowed from the banks by the owners, according to the present belief of John C. Billheimer, auditor of state, relator for the state in the receivership proceedings.

It is the belief of the auditor, according to the petitions, that more than $19,000 has been abstracted from the Bank of Fowler and is unaccounted for, and that more than $18,000 has been abstracted from the Citizens' private bank at Ambia. It is stated also that it is the belief of the relator that more than $112,000 of the funds of these two banks and another bank owned by Baldwin & Dague was extracted and invested in Arkansas timber lands and in the construction of a railroad and a sawmill on these lands.

The petition alleges that the owners of the banks took out of the Ambia bank $35,000 in notes and securities and hypothecated these for funds to be used in their private business. It is alleged that the securities abstracted in this way from the Bank of Fowler amounted to $16,349. It is set forth also that the owners took out of the Ambia bank $38,000 on their own personal notes unsecured, and more than $10,000 out of the Bank of Fowler on personal notes unsecured.

The petition for a receiver for the Goodland bank, which was closed also, will probably not be filed at once. It may be filed at Kentland next Saturday. The hope is that the bank may be placed on its feet again. This bank is said to be in better condition than either of the other two, and if certain securities can be realized on, it is believed the bank can continue business. In the petitions it is alleged that the examiner found that the banks were insolvent.

Our Banking System the Best In the World.

By CHARLES G. DAWES, Former Comptroller of the Currency.

THE present banking system of the United States is the best in the world. The banking power of our country is GREATER THAN THAT OF ALL CONTINENTAL EUROPE.

We have this great system of separate and independent banks, and, whether we wish it or not or whether THEORETICALLY it is best or not, we must face as practical men the UTTER IMPOSSIBILITY of a reversion at this stage of our banking development to any type of banking fundamentally different. It is impracticable politically and from a business standpoint.

ALL THAT THE SITUATION NEEDS FROM CONGRESS, IN MY JUDGMENT, IS, FIRST, THE CHANGE IN THE LAWS REGULATING CASH RESERVES OF NATIONAL BANKS AND, SECOND, THE AUTHORIZING OF A HEAVILY TAXED BANK ASSET EMERGENCY CIRCULATION.

It might as well be recognized now that the independent treasury system of the United States has largely PROVED ITS COMMERCIAL SALVATION in the present crisis.

We have heard so much loose talk in recent years about the EVILS of the subtreasury system and its locking up the cash of the country when needed in commerce and business that we may as well recognize its benefits and WHAT WE HAVE, ESCAPED THROUGH IT, AND IT ALONE.

The difference between conditions with our independent treasury and the position which we would eventually reach with its abolition is that the government would in the latter case be hard up for cash as well as the rest of us. From the moment of our putting the extra cash in the treasury into circulation it BECOMES THE BASIS OF BUSINESS and credits are built up above it under the ordinary operations of banking.

INDIANA POLITICS

By ROBERT G. TUCKER

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 24.—The Republicans of Indiana will formally launch Vice President Fairbanks's presidential boom at the biennial love-feast of the party at the Claypool hotel Thursday afternoon. The love-feast will bring together hosts of active members of the party whose indorsement will be equivalent almost to any that could be made by a state convention. It is expected that Senator Beveridge and Senator Hemenway, members of the congressional delegation, and others will take part in the proceedings and that much will be said regarding the chances of Indiana's candidate. The vice president has sent his regrets. He is unable to come because of engagements at Washington, but it is generally conceded now that his boom will be a favorite theme. His lieutenants are not the only ones who say they see unmistakable signs of a change in sentiment throughout the state that is very favorable to him. A few weeks ago there were scores of politicians in Indiana who were merely for the vice president in a perfunctory way, and they were taking lightly the efforts of his ardent admirers to boom him, but they are now said to be lining up voluntarily. There seems to be a growing impression in Indiana that the vice president stands a better chance than any of his opponents and that his middle-of-the-road policy will make him a winner.

The contest for the Republican nomination for governor bids fair to reach the boiling point within a short time, although it will not be settled for four months. All of the candidates are devoting their entire time to it, and they have their followers keyed to a very high pitch. Congressman Watson has returned from Washington and has been busy in the northern part of the state for the past week. Captain John K. Gowdy, who is in charge of his headquarters here, says that he is receiving very encouraging word from all parts of the state. After the first of the year former Attorney General Taylor's campaign will be in the hands of Oliver Ensley, district chairman here and retiring county treasurer. He is a capable and painstaking organizer, and it is believed that he will lend much strength to Taylor's campaign. Lieutenant Governor Hugh T. Miller of Columbus probably will not open headquarters in Indianapolis, but he is as active as any of the candidates. He has visited many counties, and it is said that he has made a very good impression.

From some of Governor Hanly's intimate friends it has been learned that the governor is preparing to block the candidacy of Senator Fremont Goodwine of Williamsport for Lieutenant governor. The governor is said to be still bitter toward Senator Goodwine because he criticised the chief executive in the report of the legislative visitation committee for alleged unbusinesslike methods in letting the contract for the new institution for the deaf and dumb here. The governor is said to be resentful also because Senator Goodwine refused to support his insurance regulation bill. It is not known whom the governor will help in the race for second place on the ticket.

Senator Albert J. Beveridge has accepted an invitation extended by Chairman Goodrich of the Republican state committee, to preside over the biennial party love-feast at the Claypool hotel, Thursday afternoon. He will open the proceedings with a brief speech and will be followed by Senator Hemenway, Congressman Watson, Charles W. Miller, Lieutenant Governor Miller, William L. Taylor, candidates for governor, and other party notables.

Indiana Democrats may have a love-feast Feb. 15, with W. J. Bryan as the drawing card. Mr. Bryan has accepted an invitation to deliver an address here Sunday, Feb. 16, and members of the Indiana Democratic club have begun arrangements for a banquet for several hundred people representing the entire state, to be given the evening preceding that date.

CURRENT COMMENT

For Every Woman Her Choice.

For one who has the ear of the American public Professor Thomas is guilty of rashness when he tells woman not to be "house dog." The squaw type of wife passed out with the red man, and there are no "house dog" wives in America today except those imported from the peasant huts of Europe. The emancipation of women, so called, which has been going on in this country for half a century, is not so much one bearing upon conditions as upon traditions. The revolt has been against the fusillade of "don'ts" hurled at the sex from the pulpit, from the rostrum, from the sewing circle and from grandmother's rocking chair. The gist of the sermonizing was "Don't be unwomanly." Now the pendulum has swung so far that it is pertinent to ask, What is there that woman will do which is not womanly?

Surely if a woman can put her whole soul and energy into any sphere of activity her conduct is womanly. To cling to home, to worship home and to be happy in the home with all its

DAYBREAK.
A WIND came up out of the sea
And said, "Oh, mists, make room for me!"
It hailed the ships and cried, "Sail on,
Ye mariners; the night is gone!"
And hurried landward, far away,
Crying: "Awake! It is the day."
It said unto the forest: "Shout!
Hang all your leafy banners out!"
It touched the wood bird's folded wing
And said, "Oh, bird, awake and sing!"
And o'er the farms: "Oh, chanticleer,
Your clarion blow! The day is near."
It whispered to the fields of corn,
"Bow down and hail the coming morn."
It shouted through the belfry tower,
"Awake, oh, bell; proclaim the hour!"
It crossed the churchyard with a sigh
And said: "Not yet. In quiet lie!"
—Henry W. Longfellow.

drudgery, cares and tears is not unwomanly for the one who chooses to do just that. Some years ago Rosalie Loew, the daughter of a New York city lawyer, was admitted to the bar and was a pioneer among her sex in this field. Later she married and has now given up her practice to devote herself to her babies. At the same time a rich New York society woman, who has no children, has taken up the profession of architect with the aim of uplifting the American standard of interior decorations. Surely this is a womanly sphere, and the woman architect is no more a radical than the woman lawyer who has renounced the law court for the nursery is a reactionary. Each chose according to her personal feelings and interests. The crusade led by Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Susan B. Anthony was for the purpose of opening the door for new opportunities for women and not for the placing of handicaps, bars or ban upon the old order of activities. In the average American home the woman is the biggest factor in all that goes on. The household is her kingdom, and if she prefers to live her whole life there and never fare forth for keener sensations it must be attributed to the depth of innate womanliness in every case.

Fairs as Educators.

The failure of the Jamestown exposition to turn in a profit will be remembered adversely to the next claimant for government support in holding a world's fair. The notion has grown of late that the exposition business on a mammoth scale has been overdone, and yet the educational value of the exhibits gathered admits of no argument.

A fair seems to be the only means of showing with proper perspective the net results of our great industrial activities. County fairs, cattle shows and horse shows are established features among our institutions. The best products may cost too much to find a market, but their merit is recognized when they are compared with other things which are almost but not quite as good. Probably the permanent exhibitions which some communities are fostering are really better educators than the great shows. The visitor can choose a time of ample leisure and do the local fair effectually. To travel a thousand miles or more and be beguiled by sensations which, although they may be wholesome, are nevertheless distracting from the main object, often means to miss the gain which is in store when properly approached. All the exhibitions duly presented are instructive, and they should be suited in all respects to the studiously earnest element and not seek merely to cater to the curious.

The Japanese government is to spend $10,000,000 on the international exhibition which will be held in Tokyo in 1912. All the nations of the earth have been or will be asked to participate. If the Japanese really entertained serious fears of the possibility of war with the United States it is not likely that they would be willing to spend $10,000,000 and more for an exposition. Any available sum of this magnitude would be used to build a battleship.

While various forms of the name of the new king of Sweden are in circulation, it may be appropriate to observe that he himself calls himself Gustaf Adolf, while, if it seems desirable to Anglicize or otherwise alter it, nothing could be more fitting than the historic Gustavus Adolphus.

It has been ascertained that there are 306,000 people on the federal payroll, but it is safe to assume that not all of them are worrying over the third term question.

Scarcely has the public learned to pronounce the name of one Japanese ambassador with confidence before another is due.

The new twenty dollar gold piece is twice as "good looking" as the ten dollar coin, which nobody will deny.

When prices go down the news travels much slower than when they go up.

A SIBERIAN MAMMOTH.

Its Discovery in the River Lena and How It Was Lost.

In 1846 a young Russian engineer, Benkendorf, saw the river Lena in Siberia release a dead mammoth frozen ages ago in the bog. There had been exceptionally warm weather in the north of Siberia, and the river, swollen by melting snow and ice and torrential warm rains, swept out of its old channel and carved a new one, carrying to the sea vast quantities of its former banks and furrowing up the thawing bogs over which it raced. As he made his way in a steam cutter against the current Benkendorf saw the head of a mammoth appear above the flood. Rush upon rush of water more and more released the body. Its hind legs were still imbedded when he saw it, but twenty-four hours liberated these. The mammoth had sunk feet first into a bog. The ooze had frozen over it. Successive tides had heaped soil and vegetation upon it. Bone and flesh and hair were perfect. They secured it. They cut off its tusks. They dissected it and found in its stomach the last meal it had eaten, young shoots of the fir and pine and masticated fir cones. They were still at their work when the river, spreading farther, engulfed them. The men escaped, but the waters surged over the mammoth and carried it for carrion to the sea.

The Chrysanthemum.
Both in China and Japan is the chrysanthemum a great favorite. It is said that Chinese gardeners to whom the plant was first known will allow nothing to deter them from its culture. They will even give up their situations if forbidden by their employers to grow it. Chinese emigrants, too, take this "flower of their hearts" with them to other lands and cultivate it affectionately in their exile as a reminder of their native country. There is a Chinese "Everything comes to him who knows how to wait" which has been Anglicized as follows:
In the second month the peach tree blooms.
But not till the ninth the chrysanthemums.
So each must wait till his own turn comes.

A Christmas Ad.

(Original.)

Ned Bucklin's parents, desiring to influence their son for what they deemed his good, desired that instead of following in their footsteps as farmers he should go to college and study a profession. But Ned had become involved with Alma Blodgett, a farmer's daughter, and although she urged him to act upon his father's and mother's advice he insisted on an immediate marriage, which was equivalent to remaining on the farm. This set his parents to trying to break up the match, and, failing to do so, they continued to work with a view to a separation of the young married couple till they secured the result they desired.

Five years after the separation Ned's parents were both dead. Ned now realized that a great mistake had been made. He had divorced his wife at their instigation, and they had gone to their long home leaving him in his loneliness. Alma had only consented to a divorce on condition that she keep the children, a boy and a girl. She was a plucky woman and supported herself and them. Her husband's father to secure the divorce had settled a few thousand dollars on her, which by thrift and good investments she increased. But no sooner had the separation taken place than, taking her children, she left the location where she had been made unhappy and gave no inkling as to where she was going.

Soon after the death of his parents Ned began to search for his wife and children. He hunted six years without success. Then, hearing of the advantages of farming on the lands wrested from the great American desert in Dakota, he sold his farm, went there, bought land and began once more under new conditions. But neighbors were few and far between, and the man was lonely. During the days he was occupied, but on summer evenings the chirp of insects sounded loud and melancholy, while the winds in winter howled about his shack and made him desolate. At last he could stand it no longer. He advertised for a wife, in his ad. giving a brief summary of the conditions of his marriage and divorce.

Among the replies he received was one signed "Widow" that struck him more forcibly than any of the rest, though he had little confidence in any of them. "Widow" wrote from a point not far distant. She had come to Dakota to farm with her three children. The only difficulty she labored under was that she was a woman. A man was needed on the premises. She would either sell her farm to unite with a good practical man, or if it appeared to be more expedient the man could sell out and join her.

Bucklin was rather pleased with the tone of the letter, though the handwriting indicated an uneducated person. It was some time before he made any reply, for he could not bear to give up all hope of finding his wife and children. When his crops were in and Christmas was approaching he wrote for particulars which would enable him to visit the widow. She replied that he would find her in a certain township midway between two settlements, and since her shack was the only one within five miles he would not be likely to miss it. She suggested that if he could come at Christmas she would have more time to make his acquaintance, since she had planned her work to have a few days at that time comparatively free. She also asked that if he lived near a town he would bring a few things for the children for Christmas, inclosing a list of what she wished and a post-office order to cover the expenditure. Bucklin wrote that he would visit her the day before Christmas, but returned the postoffice order.

After writing the letter he fell to thinking that he was about to go on a fool's errand. He pictured the widow old and ugly. She had admitted that she was middle aged, which with a woman he thought would mean at least fifty. When the children would be an objection. The sight of them would continually remind him of his own little boy and girl, who must be now something like fourteen and twelve years old respectively, and he would hate these youngsters, in whom he had no interest. He wrote the widow frankly the story of his marriage and divorce, admitting that, although he was desperately lonely, he could never be happy except with his own wife and children.

Christmas came. It was a crisp morning. Bucklin was awakened by a ray of sunlight shooting through a crack. The first thought that struck him was that somewhere his boy and girl were dancing over their gift. He gave a groan, turned over and after awhile sank into another slumber.

He was awakened by the sound of sleighbells and voices. Then there came a rap at the door. "Hold on till I get on some clothes." When dressed he opened the door, and there stood the widow and her three children. Bucklin caught at his doorstep. The woman was his divorced wife.

The word "merry" applied to Christmas is not strong enough to describe that holiday. The widow had suspected from the wording of the advertisement who the advertiser was, had recognized her former husband's handwriting and to conceal her identity had replied through her daughter. The father saw for the first time his third child—a son—who had been born after the separation of his parents.

The Christmas festivities ended with a wedding between the divorced couple, though it involved a long ride for a parson. The wife sold her farm, thus giving her husband needed means to enlarge his own.

Walter Elliott, and Mr. Archibald Millikan, formerly of New Castle, and now clerk in the Appellate court at Indianapolis, are engaged. They are both well known and popular young people of the capital city, and Miss Elliott is one of the best known young persons in Shelbyville, especially in musical circles."

Miss Mary Amos, of North Perkins street returned last night from Springfield, Illinois, where she was the maid of honor at the Bisch-Coffman wedding, the bride, Miss Ethel Correll Coffman, a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Coffman, of this city, being a frequent visitor in Rushville and having many friends here. The wedding occurred in the Grace Lutheran church and was one of the most elaborate ever held in that city. The Springfield News, says of the wedding in part:

Beautiful in every detail the wedding was one of the most elaborate of the Christmas season. The wedding colors of pink and white, together with Christmas green and crimson bells, were carried out in the decorations both at the home and church. The altar of the church was brilliantly lighted and presented a beautiful appearance. * * *

Just preceding the bride came the maid of honor, Miss Mary Amos, of Rushville, Ind. She was beautifully gowned in pink tulle over taffeta, made entrain, elaborately trimmed in duchess lace. She wore a short white veil with pink ostrich tips and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

The bride entered on the arm of her father and wore an exquisite creation of messalinen satin over taffeta. The gown was made empire with a full court train and handsomely trimmed in duchess and princess lace. She wore a long bridal veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. A pretty feature of the bridal dress was the handkerchief of Irish point carried by the bride, which was used by her mother on her wedding day. * * *

CHAPTER III.

SIR ANDREW rose with disapproval written in every lineament.

"I thought your story would bear upon the murder," he said. "Had I imagined it would have nothing whatsoever to do with it I would not have remained." He pushed back his chair and bowed stiffly. "I wish you good night," he said.

There was a chorus of remonstrance, and under cover of this and the Baronet's answering protests a servant for the second time slipped a piece of paper into the hand of the gentleman with the pearl stud. He read the lines written upon it and tore it into tiny fragments.

The youngest member, who had remained an interested but silent listener to the tale of the Queen's Messenger, raised his hand commandingly.

"Sir Andrew," he cried, "in justice to Lord Arthur Chetney I must ask you to be seated. He has been accused in our hearing of a most serious crime, and I insist that you remain until you have heard me clear his character."

"You!" cried the Baronet.

"Yes," answered the young man briskly. "I would have spoken sooner," he explained, "but that I thought this gentleman"—he inclined his head toward the Queen's Messenger—"was about to contribute some facts of which I was ignorant. He, however, has told us nothing, and so I will take up the tale at the point where Lieutenant Sears laid it down and give you those details of which Lieutenant Sears is ignorant. It seems strange to you that I should be able to add the sequel to this story. But the coincidence is easily explained. I am the junior member of the law firm of Chudleigh & Chudleigh. We have been solicitors for the Chetneys for the last two hundred years. Nothing, no matter how unimportant, which concerns Lord Edam and his two sons is unknown to us, and naturally we are acquainted with every detail of the terrible catastrophe of last night."

The Baronet, bewildered but eager, sank back into his chair.

"Will you be long, sir?" he demanded.

"I shall endeavor to be brief," said the young solicitor; "and," he added, in a tone which gave his words almost the weight of a threat, "I promise to be interesting."

"There is no need to promise that," said Sir Andrew, "I find it much too interesting as it is." He glanced ruefully at the clock and turned his eyes quickly from it.

"Tell the driver of that hansom," he called to the servant, "that I take him by the hour."

"For the last three days," began young Mr. Chudleigh, "as you have probably read in the daily papers, the Marquis of Edam has been at the point of death, and his physicians have never left his house. Every hour he seemed to grow weaker; but although his bodily strength is apparently leaving him forever, his mind has remained clear and active. Late yesterday evening word was received at our office that he wished my father to come at once to Chetney House and to bring with him certain papers. What these papers were is not essential; I mention them only to explain how it was that last night I happened to be at Lord Edam's bedside. I accompanied my father to Chetney House, but at the time we reached there Lord Edam was sleeping, and his physicians refused to have him awakened. My father urged that he should be allowed to receive Lord Edam's instructions concerning the documents, but the physicians would not disturb him, and we all gathered in the library to wait until he should awake of his own accord. It was about one o'clock in the morning, while we were still there, that Inspector Lyle and the officers from Scotland Yard came to arrest Lord Arthur on the charge of murdering his brother. You can imagine our dismay and distress. Like every one else, I had learned from the afternoon papers that Lord Chetney was not dead, but that he had returned to England, and on arriving at Chetney House I had been told that Lord Arthur had gone to the Bath Hotel to look for his brother and to inform him that if he wished to see their father alive he must come to him at once. Although it was now past one o'clock, Arthur had not returned. None of us knew where Madame Zichy lived, so we could not go to recover Lord Chetney's body. We spent a most miserable night, hastening to the window whenever a cab came into the square, in the hope that it was Arthur returning, and endeavoring to explain away the facts that pointed to him as the murderer. I am a friend of Arthur's, I was with him at Harrow and at Oxford, and I refused to believe for an instant that he was capable of such a crime; but as a lawyer I could not help but see that the circumstantial evidence was strongly against him."

"Toward early morning Lord Edam awoke, and in so much better a state of health that he refused to make the changes in the papers which he had intended, declaring that he was no nearer death than ourselves. Under other circumstances, this happy change in him would have relieved us greatly, but none of us could think of anything save the death of his elder son and of the charge which hung over Arthur."

"As long as Inspector Lyle remained in the house my father decided that I, as one of the legal advisers of the family, should also remain there. But there was little for either of us to do. Arthur did not return, and nothing occurred until late this morning, when Lyle received word that the Russian servant had been arrested. He at once drove to Scotland Yard to question him. He came back to us in an hour, and informed me that the servant had refused to tell anything of what had happened the night before, or of himself, or of the Princess Zichy. He would not even give them the address of her house."

"He is in abject terror," Lyle said. "I assured him that he was not suspected of the crime, but he would tell me nothing."

"There were no other developments until two o'clock this afternoon, when word was brought to us that Arthur had been found, and that he was lying in the accident ward of St. George's Hospital. Lyle and I drove there together, and found him propped up in bed with his head bound in a bandage. He had been brought to the hospital the night before by the driver of a hansom that had run over him in the fog. The cab-horse had kicked him on the head, and he had been carried in unconscious. There was nothing on him to tell who he was, and it was not until he came to his senses this afternoon that the hospital authorities had been able to send word to his people. Lyle at once informed him that he was under arrest, and with what he was charged, and though the inspector warned him to say nothing which might be used against him, I, as his solicitor, instructed him to speak freely and to tell us all he knew of the occurrences of last night. It was evident to any one that the fact of his brother's death was of much greater concern to him, than that he was accused of his murder."

"That," Arthur said contemptuously, "that is damned nonsense. It is monstrous and cruel. We parted better friends than we have been in years. I will tell you all that happened—not to clear myself, but to help you to find out the truth." His story is as follows: Yesterday afternoon, owing to his constant attendance on his father, he did not look at the evening papers, and it was not until after dinner, when the butler brought him one and told him of its contents, that he learned that his brother was alive and at the Bath Hotel. He drove there at once, but was told that about eight o'clock his brother had gone out, but without giving any clew to his destination. As Chetney had not at once come to see his father, Arthur decided that he was still angry with him, and his mind, turning naturally to the cause of their quarrel, determined him to look for Chetney at the home of the Princess Zichy.

"Her house had been pointed out to him, and though he had never visited it, he had passed it many times and knew its exact location. He accordingly drove in that direction, as far as the fog would permit the hansom to go, and walked the rest of the way, reaching the house about nine o'clock. He rang, and was admitted by the Russian servant. The man took his card into the drawing-room, and at once his brother ran out and welcomed him. He was followed by the Princess Zichy, who also received Arthur most cordially."

"You brothers will have much to talk about," she said. "I am going to the dining-room. When you have finished, let me know."

"As soon as she had left them, Arthur told his brother that their father was not expected to outlive the night, and that he must come to him at once."

"This is not the moment to remember your quarrel," Arthur said to him; "you have come back from the dead only in time to make your peace with him before he dies."

"Arthur says that at this Chetney was greatly moved."

"You entirely misunderstand me, Arthur," he returned. "I did not know the governor was ill, or I would have gone to him the instant I arrived. My only reason for not doing so was because I thought he was still angry with me. I shall return with you immediately, as soon as I have said good-by to the Princess. It is a final good-by. After to-night, I shall never see her again."

"Do you mean that?" Arthur cried.

"Yes," Chetney answered. "When I returned to London I had no intention of seeking her again, and I am here only through a mistake." He then told Arthur that he had separated from the Princess even before he went to Central Africa, and that, moreover, while at Cairo on his way south, he had learned certain facts concerning her life there during the previous season, which made it impossible for him to ever wish to see her again. Their separation was final and complete.

"She deceived me cruelly," he said; "I cannot tell you how cruelly. During the two years when I was trying to obtain my father's consent to our marriage she was in love with a Russian diplomat. During all that time he was secretly visiting her here in London, and her trip to Cairo was only an excuse to meet him there."

"Yet you are here with her to-night," Arthur protested, "only a few hours after your return."

"That is easily explained," Chetney answered. "As I finished dinner to-night at the hotel, I received a note from her from this address. In it she said she had but just learned of my arrival, and begged me to come to her at once. She wrote that she was in great and present trouble, dying of an incurable illness, and without friends or money. She begged me, for the sake of old times, to come to her assistance. During the last two years in the jungle all my former feeling for Zichy has utterly passed away, but no one could have dismissed the appeal she made in that letter. So I came here, and found her, as you have seen her, quite as beautiful as she ever was, in very good health, and, from the look of the house, in no need of money."

MARRIAGE ON COTTON BALE.

Plantation Hands Raised It and Used It as Altar For Double Wedding.

When Robert Robinson fell in love with Tebbie Bell the two of them were picking cotton near Summerfield, a little country town not far from Selma, Ala., says a special dispatch to the New York Times. Robert's close friend was Perry Braxton, and Perry's eyes looked with fondness on the charcoal complexioned Florence Norris. The friends fell deeply in love at the same time, but cotton picking was not doing very much financially by them, and they looked about for a means of gaining their plantation sweethearts and paying the preacher. The two went in on a proposition of raising just enough cotton of their own to provide them a start in married life, and in off times they worked sundry bare strips of land and cared for their little patches of the plant.

The first bale of cotton the field hand lovers picked from their own plants was ready to bring to market the other day, and Robert and Perry, grinning from ear to ear, followed by Tebbie and Florence, blushing furiously, but invisibly, arrived in Selma.

L. Yaretsky, a cotton factor in Water street, bought their big bale and offered them the money. The two negro couples lingered in the cotton factor's office until Yaretsky's curiosity was aroused, and he asked them what was the matter.

"Hyar's de Bible, mistuh," said Robert at last, "an' hyar's de ring fo' Tebbie's finguh."

"An' hyar's de ring fo' Flo'nce's finguh, mistuh," added Perry.

Yaretsky called up a minister on the telephone, and in a few minutes this double romance of the cotton fields was being rounded off. The four had waited eagerly for the production and sale of that bale of cotton, and it had some sentimental value to them. So they stood on the bale as the wedding ceremony was performed, the minister standing on a chair.

"Is yo' gwine honuh an' obey dis nigguh, Tebbie?" asked the minister, peering through his silver rimmed octagonal spectacles.

"Suttinly. Ain't he muh ma-a-an?" retorted Tebbie.

"All right," announced the parson.

"Tek him, an' see dat he treats yo' right, gal."

"Miss Norris," began the parson, turning to the other bride, "yo' loves dis gen'man?"

"Yassir," simpered Florence.

"Den let not man dissunder what Gaud A'mighty has j'ined on dis cotton bale."

Selma never before had a bale of cotton used for an altar or a wedding as interesting.

An Investigation Begun.

New York, Dec. 24.—The grand jury has begun an investigation into the affairs of the Hamilton bank of Harlem, which recently closed its doors. The inquiry is the result of a communication sent by Frank White, the receiver of the bank, to Attorney General Jackson, declaring that unlawful overdrafts had been permitted, and suggesting that District Attorney Jerome be asked to start an investigation.

Every Little Bit Helps.

Denver, Col., Dec. 24.—The first installment, $25,000, of the $100,000 fund pledged to the Democratic national committee by the Denver Convention League, has been forwarded to Chairman Thomas Taggart at French Lick, Ind. The remainder will be paid in equal installments on Jan. 22, Feb. 22 and March 22.

Suicide by Shooting.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 24.—Frank Carpenter, secretary of the Carpenter Paper company, one of the largest paper houses in the West, committed suicide at his home last night by shooting.

McCauley's Paint and Wall Paper Store is just opposite the engine house, on W. Third Street, between the terminal building and Main street. Do not fail to see his line of wall paper and the famous "Gibson sketches." They frame pictures too.

Traders Take a Hint.

New York, Dec. 24.—The tightening up of the money market Monday gave unmistakable warning to the speculative element of the necessity of caution in using borrowed funds. The warning was heeded and the market lapsed into a condition of semi-stagnation in consequence.

Accepted New Courthouse.

The Fleet In the Pacific

Rear Admiral Evans Can Call Up Each of His Sixteen Battleships by Wireless Telephone—A $600,000 Coal Bill For Uncle Sam—When the Oregon Rushed Around Cape Horn

CAT MASCOT SALUTING.

HE winter cruise from the Atlantic to the Pacific of the great fleet of sixteen battleships and their attendant vessels will "eat up" approximately $600,000 worth of coal. This will be the biggest item of expense incident to the cruise. The 15,000 men on board the ships will eat no more than they do on other duty unless it should happen that the southern air should enhance their appetites. The food supply bill, therefore, will not be appreciably larger than it would be were the ships lying in port or exercising up and down the Atlantic coast. Another considerable item of expense will be that of pilotage. The fleet must pass through the strait of Magellan, a difficult feat, and will put into five strange harbors on the voyage. For safe and sane conduct through the strait and in and out of harbors experienced local pilots must be hired.

As to the coal bill, this item will be much smaller under the conditions imposed upon the cruise than it would be if the fleet were taken around to San Francisco on rush orders. The ships will proceed at a leisurely gait for the most part. It is understood that a uniform speed of twelve miles an hour or less will be adhered to, though the battleships are capable of from eighteen to twenty-two miles on that the press of the United States will enjoy from time to time some interesting stories of shore leave pranks. The commanders of the ships no doubt will find it necessary to employ their powers of discipline and diplomacy to the utmost in order to keep Jack from bubbling over with enthusiasm when he goes ashore in considerable groups to get his land legs.

While at sea Jack will have plenty of business to occupy his attention, though it is by no means all work and no play aboard ship. The men of each vessel have mascots with which to amuse themselves in off moments. Several goats, cats, parrots, monkeys and dogs will make the cruise around the Horn, sure of regular meals and abundant attention from their admirers, officers as well as enlisted men.

While the ships are at sea it ought to be a comparatively easy matter for Admiral Evans to handle his forces, for on this cruise, for the first time in the history of the world, the wireless telephone will be used for communication between the ships of a great naval fleet. Every battleship has been fitted with wireless telephone devices, a wonderful invention but recently perfected. From his station in the emergency cabin of the flagship Connecticut an officer serving as the fleet's "hello boy," so to speak, will be able to call up at will the officers of any other ship, even though ten miles of brine and wireless distance may intervene. By the wireless phone messages by word of mouth may be sent from ship to ship with the accuracy and ease of wired telephone messages from room to room in a modern hotel.

The value of such a system under the circumstances is self evident. Heretofore intership signaling has been done by means of flags or by "wigwagging." Frequently it happens that occasion. When the battleship Oregon came around the Horn on her famous trip to get into the Santiago fight of 1908 she made only about an average of nine knots an hour, actual sailing time, owing to the necessity of keeping in touch with her colliers, which were nautical slowpokes.

In this cruise Admiral Evans' ships will be accompanied by coaling vessels carrying supplies of fuel in excess of that stored in the bunkers of the battleships themselves. The colliers will load up with coal as needed from time to time at the several ports where stops will be made. Supply ships also accompany the fleet, cargoes with canned meats and other foods. Fresh supplies of provisions will be obtained at the stopping places. The selection and purchase of these supplies will test the skill of Uncle Sam's naval commissary officers. It will be a new experience dense fogs obscure these signals, so that ships almost touching sides are unable to communicate with each other. With the wireless phone a fog won't matter. The fine fleet, in two squadrons, each squadron comprising two divisions of four battleships each, may be manipulated by vocal orders at will. It is said by the naval wireless expert who investigated and reported upon the new wireless telephone that even in battle it will be possible to talk between ships. Other nations will be deeply interested in this wireless phone test.

Each of these sixteen battleships is thoroughly modern and up to date in every particular. All save two, have been built since the war with Spain. They have been almost continuously in commission since their launching and have been overhauled and put in shipshape for this particular cruise with a view to the utmost efficiency. With an aggregate displacement of more than 233,000 tons and with more than 350 guns of four inch caliber and above, the fleet is the most powerful and formidable ever assembled by Uncle Sam. In the manner of armament only two of the battleships, the Kentucky and the Kearsarge, differ from the general pattern of recent fighting ships of the first class. These ships carry superimposed turrets, guns being operated in two stories, a smaller turret resting upon the larger one. Each turret holds two guns.

Three rear admirals accompany the fleet to the Pacific. First in importance is the commander in chief, Robey D. Evans, senior rear admiral in the navy and the highest ranking officer in actual sea service, Admiral Dewey being his only superior. Rear Admirals William H. Emory and Charles M. Thomas command divisions of the fleet. The captains of the sixteen battleships as assigned for this cruise are:

Connecticut (flagship of Admiral Evans), Hugo Osterhaus; Louisiana, Richard Wainwright; Kansas, Charles E. Vreeland; Vermont, William P. Potter; Georgia (flagship of Admiral Emory), Henry McCrea; Virginia, Seaton Schroeder; New Jersey, W. H. H. Southernland; Rhode Island, Joseph B. Murdock; Minnesota (flagship of Admiral Thomas), John Hubbard; Ohio, Lewis C. Hellmer; Maine, Gies B. Harber; Missouri, Greenleaf A. Merriam; Alabama, Ten Eyck D. W. Veeder; Illinois, J. H. Bowyer; Kearsarge, H. Hutchins; Kentucky, W. C. Cowles.

Great Rustlers And Good Pork.

Tamworth swine have some splendid qualities. They have a stamina and vigor that would be the envy of all the weak races of light limbed and gouty swine if swine were capable of indulging in envy. They have a magnificent frame viewed from the standpoint of ruggedness. They are seldom troubled with rheumatism or gout or paralysis of the limbs or breaking down in the legs. They have limbs that can carry them to the pasture, through the same and home again without labored effort. And when dread diseases abound, as cholera or swine plague, Tamworths will not suffer so greatly in consequence as some breeds.

They are magnificent breeders. They are proverbial for large litters, and no less famous are they for the way in which they rear them. The young litters have strength and action that enable them to fight an easy battle for existence from the first if they are given half a chance. As many pigs will be reared by one-third less the number of Tamworth sows than from sows of several other breeds, and they will be reared in better form. Feed a Tamworth sow properly, then give her enough exercise, and it is a pleasure to notice the pigs grow while she nurses them.

Tamworths are also grand for crossing on short bodied and short limbed sows, and the longer the period that such sows and their ancestors have been tied too closely to a corn diet the greater the renovation which such crosses will confer. Introducing them is like leading the healing waters of perennial streams into a weary land. The progeny from these crosses will inherit strength and vigor and prolificacy that will agreeably surprise the men who are so discerning as to make such crosses.

But one of the grandest qualities of Tamworths, as Professor Thomas Shaw sums these up in the National Swine Magazine, is the ability they have to produce the best quality of pork. Because of the intermingling of the fat and lean on the side they make the best of bacon. Their shoulders and hams are not so overlaid with fat that has to be thrown away as with many breeds. Farmers who once grow Tamworths to provide their own pork will want to grow them again.

Typical Tamworth.

Tamworth swine originated in England many years ago and were first introduced into this country in 1882 by Thomas Bennett of Illinois. They are now most numerous in a few of the western states and are also found in the eastern states and in Canada. Tamworths are favored for their many good points in some regions far from the corn belt, where the lard hog rules.

The Tamworth sow Spring Brook Nellie is illustrated by American Agriculturist as a representative of one of the leading bacon breeds. This splendid animal weighed about 800 pounds and was the grand prize winner at the New York, Ohio and Kentucky state fairs last fall. In size Tamworths are about as large as the large Yorkshire, and they mature at a medium early age. In color they are of a reddish or chestnut brown.

Clews For the Swine Layman.

Any one who has given a little attention to the breeds of swine can readily remember which breeds are white or black or sandy color, but many find it difficult to distinguish between the different breeds of the same color. These "swine laymen" will be helped by remembering that each color includes a prominent breed with erect ears and a prominent breed with drooping ears. The white swine include several breeds having erect ears. The blacks include two. In all cases the breeds having erect ears have a single word for their name, and the breeds having drooping ears have a compound word for their name. This is shown by the following table, says Country Gentleman:

Erect Ears.	Drooping Ears.
White.....	Yorkshire.....
	Chester-White
	Cheshire
	Victoria
	Suffolk
Black.....	Berkshire.....
	Poland-China
	Essex
Sandy.....	Tamworth.....

The Horse's Food.

It is claimed that 2 per cent of the horse's weight of good, nourishing food is all it should eat in a day. By this rule a horse weighing 1,500 pounds should receive thirty pounds of food, but it must be considered that something depends upon the amount of labor performed as well as the digestive capacity and appetite of the animal.

Raise the Draft Stallions.

The time is here now when farmers of the central west should raise more of their good draft stallions. The good horses that come from Europe are not out of pampered mares, but come from the small farms where all the horse labor is done with pure bred mares, remarks an exchange.

GET RICH QUICK.

Schemes of this class have again come to grief along with the gullible investors, causing serious loss of innocent business concerns, as always the case of panics in Wall Street.

While this last lesson is yet fresh in mind, it is an opportune moment to consider causes and means to avoid like trouble in the future.

Direct your attention to that greatest of all Newspapers the Cincinnati Enquirer. From its columns one can readily detect the trend of currency, its lodging places, by whom handled, uses made of it, and final results.

Again you read quotations of Bonds, Stocks, and Securities of every nature, fixing Status of all business from the retailer, to United States Government.

Also Current News, facts and reliable data covering the entire world; all sufficiently explicit to enable thinking people to avoid snags and follow the channel of success.

Its extra size and high price, is the secret of its ability to discover, obtain, print and serve its patrons with all the news, and cater to wants of people in every calling of life.

The Weekly Enquirer for the year 1908 has greatly increased its flubbing offers which now include the most select and popular publications of the day at prices slightly over half the regular Subscription rates.

Do not overlook the fact that the year 1908 promises to excel in prosperity any of the past, and that the Enquirer printed at Cincinnati, Ohio, is one of the most reliable sources of information.
